Asylum in Twentieth-street, between Second and Third Avenue.

REPORT.

YOUR managers, in making their Annual Report at the close of the thirty-first year of the Society's labors, experience great pleasure in being able to state, that the past year has been one of unparalleled health, peace, comfort and contentment, to the numerous household under their care. And while they rejoice in these cheering results of the Divine blessing on your bounty and their efforts, they would acknowledge, with sincerest gratitude, their indebtedness to the gracious Author, who has been pleased to employ their feeble instrumentality in bestowing so great a benefit on their aged and helpless fellow creatures.

Although there have been some few cases of lingering sickness, requiring medical aid through the greater part of the year, the unusual degree of health, enjoyed by the household in the Asylum, is evinced by the fact, that but one death occurred in more than ten months, and but three during the entire year. Contrasting this small number of deaths, with the size and character of the family—a family consisting of sixty-one aged females, with but few exceptions feeble and infirm, and many of them afflicted with chronic diseases common to old age and scarcely admitting a hope of remedy—the fact will appear both surprising and exceedingly gratifying, as showing the tendency which the good regulations, nutritious and appropriate diet, and local advantages of the Asylum have, not only to render comfortable and serene, but to lengthen out the evening of old age.

The three whose deaths have been mentioned were each upwards of seventy ; each entered the Asylum soon after its doors were first opened ; they were each sustained through long protracted illness and severe bodily sufferings, by the consolations of that Gospel, which had been their refuge in their more vigorous years ; and each died in the enjoyment of the Christian's hope, anticipating a blessed immortality beyond the grave.

But while we present the pleasing aspect, which the successful employment of means has produced within the Asylum, we regret that we cannot give a similarly gratifying representation of the Society's more extensive field of benevolent operations without the Asylum—a field comprising from 75 to 80 just such females, as have a full claim on the benefactions of this association—worthy, respectable, aged and destitute ; many of them bred in affluence, and accustomed, in their more prosperous days, to all the delicacies and refinements of wealth. It is in their case, when means are inadequate, that retrenchment must first take place ; and in their case let it be remembered, it does take place from year to year. Your managers are brought to the grievous necessity of diminishing the little pension, regularly dealt out to them through the winter months, to a very small sum as the summer months approach ; and from many, during the latter season, they are constrained to withhold even that little ; the withholding of which occasions more sorrow and privation to them, than the loss of hundreds of dollars could possibly do to many of their benefactors.

Your managers hope the day may be far, far distant, when interest in this cause and liberality in its support, shall be so diminished on the part of those whom God has prospered, that need shall be for retrenchment to extend beyond the out-door limits, and to enter again within the walls of the Asylum. They painfully experienced this necessity, in some small degree, at a former period, when diminishing of comforts, where at best they are but few in comparison with the multitude of cares and sorrows, was found to be the most unpleasant duty they have been called upon to perform, during their six years' management of the Asylum, and they humbly trust, that the gracious Being, in whose hand are the hearts of all men, and who is especially the God of the widow and the Friend of the friendless, will so dispose the stewards of His bounty to communicate according to their ability, and the necessities of their fellow creatures, that we shall be spared a repetition of this trial; and not only so, but we indulge the hope of better things concerning our out-door pensioners—a hope that by more numerous contributions to our funds, we shall be enabled more effectually to relieve their wants. We earnestly plead for them; and, although we do not feel pledged for their entire support, as we do for that of those within the Asylum, we esteem them equally worthy and possessing claims equally strong upon your compassion. We would not dare to diminish this class of pensioners, fearing that He, whose ear is ever open to the cry of the poor and needy, and who has sustained us hitherto in our efforts to relieve them, would frown upon us. Neither dare we, under present encouragement, increase the number, although applications of a most urgent and suitable character are constantly made to us. In such cases, both as regards the Asylum and the out-door pensioners, we can only enter them as expectants upon our lists, hereafter to take the places of those whom death or other causes may remove.

We feel persuaded, that our pleasant airy Asylum, with its 61 aged inhabitants, comfortably provided for in all respects and carefully attended in sickness ; together with our 80 pensioners distributed throughout the city, and relieved according to our ability ; must present to every reflecting mind a beautiful and impressive spectacle—exhibiting a vast amount of good, accomplished by means comparatively small, and bearing lightly too on the community, being chiefly derived from the little voluntary offerings of here and there an individual. Considerations such as these, justly commend this cause to the favor of an enlightened and benevolent public ; and should, we think, not only deter any of our present patrons from withdrawing their accustomed bounty, unless necessity compels, but should also enlist many others, whom God has endowed with worldly goods, to bear a part in this blessed work of relieving and comforting the worthy aged in their destitution and affliction.

As was before said, but three deaths have occurred at the Asylum during the year ; two removals have also taken place. One worthy old lady departed at her own request, to reside with a friend ; and another, likewise very worthy and aged inmate, on account of insanity, which rendered it improper to retain her, was transferred to the Lunatic Asylum, and there died after a few days. Six persons have been admitted during the year, making the number one more than was stated in the last annual report.

Our sick have received prompt, kind and regular attention from Drs. Goldsmith and Childs; and, in frequent instances of emergency, when it became necessary to call on some near physician, Dr. Huntington has very cheerfully rendered gratuitous services. To these gentlemen the managers tender hearty thanks for their valuable and efficient aid.

The important duty devolving upon a portion of your managers, of obtaining a supply of evangelical ministers of different denominations for our chapel, has been very successfully performed. It is with heart-felt satisfaction we report, that the Rev. Clergy of our city have responded readily and most kindly to the call made upon them, and have preached the Gospel of our salvation faithfully and affectionately, to the aged poor of our charge, every Sabbath afternoon, with but four omissions during the whole year. A morning service also has been regularly maintained by some young gentlemen of the Episcopal Theological Seminary. In addition to these religious advantages, a stated prayer-meeting has been held at the Asylum on Wednesday evenings, by the Rev. Mr. Darling, and the elders of the Rev. Mr. Bush's church. It is the testimony of the latter gentlemen, and we believe we may truly say of all, who have borne a part in administering the instructions and consolations of the Gospel to these aged disciples of our Lord, that the interesting character of their audience, and the gratification expressed with child-like simplicity and sincerity, have added much to their satisfaction in performing this labor of love. To all these kind co-operators in this better part of charity, "highly esteemed for their work's sake," the managers express their sincerest thanks.

It will be seen by the Treasurer's statement, that our funds are very low, and the Board makes an earnest appeal to the friends of respectable aged indigent females, to aid them in this emergency, to provide for the increased wants of their numerous helpless family in the approaching wintry season.

Our faithful and indefatigable Auxiliary has supplied us, during the past year, with 340 garments and other useful articles. To them our warmest acknowledgments are due. They have been our efficient coadjutors for twenty-two years past. The garments they provide are chiefly bestowed on our out-door pensioners. Many of the inmates of the Asylum are capable of doing their own sewing ; and a number of such as could do plain simple work, have been employed in assisting other charities, as will be seen by the Work Committee's statement.
